Vera/Scott:

In short, I think our clarification is: Regarding the Five-Year Review, we will discuss and respond to questions regarding the process and scope. We are not able to discuss conclusions of the Review while it is in preparation.

As always, we can discuss issues pertinent to Rocky Flats operation and maintenance. The public "input" for the 5YR was broad and far-reaching. Does raising issues during public input put those issues on the "do not discuss" list during the development of the 5YR report?

We'll step aside and let you carry the torch since we are merely consultants in this process.

Vera,

Carl and I just talked. We will not respond to David's last email since this seems to go beyond the "normal" substantive issues we regularly address.

Because David's ultimate question seems to solicit substantive information in the FYR draft/internal discussion, perhaps the response is something like "DOE is currently drafting the Five-Year Review so the substance of the draft is indeterminate."

(Carl, please clarify if I am misstating!!!)
